THE GREENBRIER COMPANIES

A NOTE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Most people recognize The Greenbrier Companies today as a global supplier of freight railcars, marine barges and related services. Across the world, our more than 12,000 employees in 5 countries work hard every day to supply freight equipment and services to a diverse community of customers.

People are often surprised to learn that Greenbrier's roots trace to 1919, when the Gunderson brothers formed a steel fabrication business in Portland, Oregon. Over the years, that company grew and expanded to railcar and barge manufacturing, and today it remains our flagship manufacturing location supporting operations on four continents.

As our company has grown, we've never forgotten the communities and people who helped us along the way. We still care deeply about Portland, just like we care about Świdnica, Poland, Hortolandia, Brazil, Arad, Romania, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia and the other communities around the world that Greenbrier calls home. Sometimes, Greenbrier's investments are provided to help alleviate immediate human suffering, other times, they are simply about making our community a better place to live. We're proud that Greenbrier's success has enabled us to give back at a high level, making direct impacts in the communities where we do business, including in Sahagún, Tlaxcala and Monclova, Mexico, where our employees recently helped their local communities recover from two devastating earthquakes. This fiscal year, our employees across the globe dedicated over 10,616 hours to volunteer service.

We're proud of our commitment to making an impact in our local communities, and we challenge ourselves to do more every year. Thanks for taking the time to explore the unique ways we're giving back.

GREENBRIER HELPS WITH MEXICO EARTHQUAKE RECOVERY

Following the two devastating earthquakes that struck Central Mexico in September 2017, Greenbrier employees took action to help with rescue and recovery efforts. Greenbrier Mexico safety officials assisted first responders with recovery efforts immediately following the earthquakes. Employees and partners continued relief efforts in the days and weeks following the disasters by collecting and distributing more than two trucks of bottled water to communities heavily affected by the earthquake in Mexico City, as well as in smaller communities that had not yet received help. Greenbrier employees helped collect over 10 tons of food and other relief items at GIMSA's sister plant in Sahagún that were then delivered to the Red Cross to help those affected by the earthquakes in Mexico City, Oaxaca, Puebla and Morelos. In addition, Greenbrier donated a total of $42,000, including employee donations, to the relief efforts coordinated by Plants 2 and 3.

PROVIDENCE HEART INSTITUTE

Greenbrier teamed up with the Providence Heart Institute to screen for undetected heart conditions in young people, a leading cause of sports-related deaths, by pledging $400,000 to the Providence Heart Institute – the largest charitable gift in Greenbrier’s history. Lorie Tekorius, Executive Vice President, CFO with Greenbrier and a member of the Providence St. Vincent Medical Foundation Council of Trustees initiated the conversations that led to the donation. Tekorius said she has heard too many stories of young people who suffer, often fatal, sudden cardiac arrest as the result of an underlying heart condition. Tekorius suggested to Greenbrier the idea of making a major gift to Providence’s Play Smart program, which screens youth free of charge for issues that can cause sudden cardiac arrest or lead to heart disease. “Few things are as tragic as when a young, seemingly-healthy person’s heart suddenly stops while at play,” Tekorius said. “The Providence Heart Institute makes it a priority to screen as many children as possible to prevent these kinds of tragedies.”

Greenbrier’s gift will also support Providence Heart Institute’s new Center for Cardiovascular Analytics, Research and Data Science, or CARDS. According to James Beckerman, M.D., medical director of prevention and wellness, Providence Heart Institute and Play Smart’s founder, congenital heart disease is a leading cause of sudden death in young people, often striking during or just after play. Play Smart’s free heart screenings seek to prevent these tragedies. Play Smart has provided free screenings in schools and parks to more than 17,000 students, including 7,000 in the past year. Nearly 1,200 have needed follow-ups, some for potentially deadly conditions.
